A UPS, short for uninterruptible power supply, is an electrical device that provides backup power when the power source fails. A UPS is different from an auxiliary or back-up power system in that it provides almost instantaneous protection against power interruptions by supplying energy stored in batteries, supercapacitors or flywheels.

There are 3 types of UPS: Off-line UPS: The devices connected to the off-line UPS are powered from the grid. If the voltage drops below a certain threshold, the battery takes over and the UPS transforms the power into alternating voltage.
