

How can we support a solar energy project in Majuro?

Another commonly used approach is cross-subsidisation. If other options are not practical, it is worth considering a cross-subsidy to support off-grid solar on outer islands through an increased electricity tariff for Majuro government facilities. Donor projects typically include training as part of the installation process.

Will the United Arab Emirates install solar at Majuro airport & Ebeye?

The United Arab Emirates may proceed with its tentative plan to install 500 kWp of on-grid solar at Majuro airport and 200 kWp in Ebeye. If so, the plans for the 800 kW installation for Majuro and the other 200 kW installation at Ebeye may be reconsidered due to concerns about grid instability.

Does Majuro have electricity?

This means that overall electrification in the RMI will at that point exceed 99%. Biomass, mostly coconut fronds, husks and shells, is a significant source of cooking energy. However, liquid petroleum gas (LPG) is now the main cooking fuel on Majuro and is becoming more popular on other islands. Two electricity utilities operate in the RMI.

How much energy does Majuro & Ebeye have?

As shown in table 1, the Majuro and Ebeye grids have a combined load of 8.8 megawatts (MW), and the small local grids less than 1 MW. MEC also manages the stand-alone solar installations on all the populated outer islands. Of the grids operational in the RMI, only Majuro has any installed renewable energy capacity.

How to reduce fossil fuel imports for electricity generation on Majuro & Ebeye?

To decrease fossil fuel imports for electricity generation on Majuro and Ebeye, cutting the diesel generation load and raising renewable energy generation is a high priority. The first step is to integrate a 500 kW solar farm and install a rebuilt genset, which will ultimately run on coconut oil biofuel.

Should a modular solar system be financed by the Marshall Islands Development Bank?

The preferable scenario in the RMI would be to create a standardised modular design prequalified for financing by the Marshall Islands Development Bank. Any requirement for a detailed technical review of a proposed installation is thereby eliminated. That way, home owners or solar PV installers will know in advance exactly what will be installed.
